Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 28 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
A few isolated showers, primarily in northernmost areas. Feeling cold.

Today:
A cloudy and dull start with just a few isolated showers. Becoming largely dry for most through the afternoon, whereas showers are expected to continue in northernmost areas. Patchy cloud allowing for sunny spells. Feeling cold. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
Remaining dry into the night for most, with clear spells, especially in southern parts. Showers in northernmost areas largely easing. A return to cold nights, with frost developing. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Thursday:
Frequent showers sweep the region through the morning, continuing through the afternoon. These ease during the evening, leaving a largely dry night. Feeling cold throughout, with overnight frost. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
More frequent scattered showers on Friday, and likewise on Saturday though becoming heavier in nature. Largely dry and fine with patchy cloud on Sunday. Remaining cold, with overnight frosts likely.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.